OXYGEN THERAPY

Oxygen Therapy

A contemporary method of treatment by enriching your body with oxygen.

Oxygen occurs as free oxygen in the atmosphere and constitutes essential fuel for our body cells.

Oxygen Therapy as a method.

An ideal method for patients and for beauty treatments.

Oxygen therapy is used for the treatment of various conditions, with beneficial effects in every type of hypoxaemia (low concentration of oxygen in the blood), cystic fibrosis, systolic blood pressure (SBP), heart and respiratory arrest, respiratory distress syndrome, forms of sleep apnea, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, primary pulmonary hypertension, chronic chest diseases, heart failure and many other conditions.

It is also worth mentioning that apart from treatment of diseases and rehabilitation, oxygen therapy is also used in beauty treatments. This combination also activates vital functions of the skin such as collagen and hyaluronic acid production, resulting in a firmer and youthful skin.

How it is applied

The treatment is applied by specialists in specific proportions.

Although oxygen therapy has a number of benefits when applied appropriately, it may also cause adverse effects to the body, in cases that therapeutic protocols are not applied.

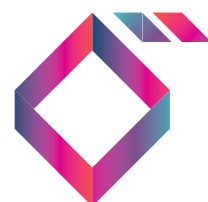

The treatment is administered with the use of specific respiratory apparatus that allows patients to inhale oxygen of certain density, for a specific amount of time, according to the condition of each patient. This increases oxygenation in the area generating the appropriate benefits for the body.

What you should know

The therapy protocols ensure the appropriate application and the desired effects.

Oxygen therapy must always be applied according to doctor's instructions. The quantity, duration and administration of medical oxygen will be decided after a medical history check and combined tests, if necessary.

In any case, you must feel confident and safe, since our clinic applies all the necessary therapy protocols, in order to make sure that modern methods are applied with absolute safety and success.
