OZONE THERAPY

Ozone Therapy

A natural element
with multiple benefits for the body.

We all know that ozone is present (in very low concentrations) throughout the Earth's atmosphere. What we don't know is that in the last few years, ozone therapy constitutes a modern medical approach for the treatment and therapy of conditions, applied at specialized rehabilitation centers such as Prevital.

Ozone therapy as a method.

It treats most of the conditions and diseases and finds a broad spectrum of applications.

Ozone therapy is a method that may be used in different areas of medicine, such as dermatology, dentistry, ophthalmology, gynaecology, neurology. It may also be used to treat various diseases and conditions, such as acne, shingles (also known as herpes zoster), gingivitis, otitis media, burns and a number of other conditions of the musculoskeletal, nervous and cardiovascular system as well as a combination therapy for the treatment of various types of cancer.

Ozone maintains certain properties that make it very useful not only as a therapy, but also as part of combination therapies in certain types of cancer. It also has the ability to awaken the immune system while it increases blood flow upon entering blood circulatory system and makes red blood cells more flexible reaching even the finest capillaries. Due to the fact, that it causes hyperemia (hyperaemia), it may help promote the effects of other treatments, such as chemotherapy, colitis, proctitis, intestinal fistulas, arterial disturbances, severe and chronic hepatitis (A, B, C).

Method of Application.

The application of ozone therapy is painless and fast. Experience the immediate benefits for your health.

It is administered by injections (intramuscular, intra-articular and subcutaneous, paravertebral, intravenous and through the intestine).

It is used to treat conditions of the musculoskeletal system, such as backache, osteoarthritis, cervical syndrome as well as tendinitis, tenosynovitis, myalgia and other orthopedic and painful musculoskeletal conditions.

The injectable treatment is personalized depending on the condition using different concentrations, frequencies and processes.

It may also be used in the form of autotransfusion, in which case an amount of blood is received, enriched in special bags containing an ozone-oxygen mixture and then the mixture is re-administered to the patient.

This therapy is usually indicated for patients with immune conditions.

What you should know.

The application of therapeutic protocols provides the necessary safety.

Ozone therapy is a harmless treatment, when applied at specialized centers, appropriately equipped, by trained staff, following the appropriate therapeutic protocols.

Ozone therapy may be recommended by the doctor in order to be used either as a therapy or as supplementary treatment. The doctor will examine your medical history and may ask you to submit several additional documents.
